

Aaron Briggs

Aaron was brought up amongst a musical family and had no choice but to sing and play from an early age.

He started playing piano and drums in his early years and enjoyed singing at the Isle of Wight Music, Dance and Drama Festival, winning numerous cups.

His interest in acting flourished when he attended Centre Stage School of Performing Arts, taking on lead roles in their productions.

He also performed in the Savoyards rendition of Oliver and recently took the part of Molokov in Ryde School's musical, Chess.

Recently, as well as taking up the violin, Aaron fulfils his duties as music captain at Ryde School where he also won the music award this year.

Aaron is currently working on his ARSM singing diploma under the tutelage of Tressa Lambert.

Aaron wishes to pursue a career in accountancy, but also to continue enjoying his love of music.